Louise Hopkins & Karen Mirams

Louise Hopkins and Karen Mirams are School Improvement Executives for Swale Academies Trust working across the Primary School phase.

They have both been part of the Trust for over a decade and have developed their roles following the same pathway from Deputy Headship, Headteacher, Executive Headteacher and now into school improvement roles.

Louise is passionate about digital transformation, STEM, challenging gender stereotypes and advocating for children eligible for the pupil premium along with building headteacher confidence in being Ofsted ready.

Karen has a drive to support staff and leaders with the effective use of data and assessment alongside supporting our pupils by the use of technology to enhance their learning experiences.

Workshop Description

Making AI work for you and your team

Louise and Karen will be sharing their passionate views on digital transformation and supporting staff to learn and use technology effectively.

They will be sharing their experience of using AI and inviting delegates to consider how they can use this tool in their own work and across their setting(s).

Attendees will leave with:

- Enhanced understanding of AI
- Practical examples of how AI can work for them and across their school
- Increased confidence to effectively implement AI
